BRANCH BANKING AND TRUST COMPANY,

Plaintiff,

v.

SAIID FOROUZAN RAD, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 2:14-cv-01947-APG-PAL

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

(ECF No. 38)

Plaintiff Branch Banking and Trust Company ("BB&T") filed suit against defendants Saiid Forouzan Rad and R. Philip Nourafchan for breach of a guaranty. BB&T moves for summary judgment because the parties stipulated that Rad and Nourafchan executed personal guarantees, the underlying loan defaulted, and Rad and Nourafchan defaulted under the terms of the guarantees. See ECF Nos. 33; 36 at ¶ 27. I grant BB&T's motion.

I. BACKGROUND

Defendants Rad and Nourafchan formed R&S St. Rose, LLC ("R&S") in 2005 to buy real property in Henderson, Nevada with the intent of selling it to Centex Homes. ECF No. 10-2 at 8-9.¹ Rad and Nourafchan also formed another company, R&S St. Rose Lenders, LLC ("St. Rose Lenders"), for the purpose of borrowing funds from individual lenders and loaning those funds to R&S, with the funds to be secured by a deed of trust encumbering the real property. Id.

R&S purchased the property for over $45 million. Id. at 8. R&S obtained the purchase money from (1) a $29 million purchase loan from Colonial Bank secured by a first position deed

¹ I may take judicial notice of the fact that documents were filed in state court proceedings, but I do not take judicial notice of the truth of the matters stated within those filings. Lee v. City of L.A., 250 F.3d 668, 690 (9th Cir. 2001). Both parties refer to the state court's findings of fact and conclusions of law to establish background facts and provide context. I do the same, without finding that the facts recited in the state court's rulings are true.

1 of trust on the property, (2) an $8 million earnest money deposit from Centex Homes, and (3) a 2 $12 million loan from St. Rose Lenders secured by a second position deed of trust on the 3 property. Id. at 8-10. The funds from St. Rose Lenders were obtained from individual private 4 investors, including Robert Murdock and Eckley Keach. Id. at 11.

5 Centex Homes later decided not to purchase the property and forfeited the $8 million
6 earnest money deposit. Id. at 12. Approximately six months later, R&S and Colonial Bank
7 modified the first position deed of trust by extending the maturity date in an effort to avoid 8 foreclosure. Id. Colonial Bank and R&S later entered into a $43 million construction loan with a 9 note secured by a deed of trust on the property. Id. at 15, 17; ECF Nos. 1 at 2-3, 8-74; 33 at 2.
10 The proceeds from this loan were used to pay off the prior purchase loan from Colonial Bank and 11 to pay for constructing improvements on the property. ECF Nos. 10-2 at 15, 17; 1 at 2, 9; 33 at 2.
12 The $43 million construction loan was personally guaranteed by Rad and Nourafchan. ECF Nos.
13 16-5 at 48-55; 33 at 2.

14 The note for the construction loan came due on January 30, 2009, but R&S failed to pay.
15 ECF No. 33 at 2. In April 2009, Colonial Bank demanded payment from R&S, as well as from 16 Rad and Nourafchan as guarantors, but no one paid off the loan. Id.

17 Four lawsuits followed. The first lawsuit was filed by Murdock and Keach against Rad, 18 Nourafchan, R&S, and St. Rose Lenders and was consolidated with a lawsuit by Colonial Bank.
19 Colonial Bank alleged that its deed of trust securing the $43 million construction loan had priority
20 over St. Rose Lenders' deed of trust securing the $12 million loan. ECF No. 16-5 at 1-14.

21 Shortly after Colonial Bank filed suit, the FDIC took over as receiver for Colonial Bank
22 and entered into a Purchase and Assumption Agreement with BB&T, which purported to transfer 23 Colonial Bank's assets to BB&T. ECF No. 16-2-16-4. BB&T then substituted itself for Colonial 24 Bank, amended the complaint, and asserted claims against Rad, Nourafchan, R&S, and St. Rose
25 Lenders. ECF Nos. 10-2 at 4; 10-7. All of BB&T's claims related to whether the Colonial Bank
26 deed of trust securing the construction loan had priority over the St. Rose Lenders deed of trust.
27 ECF No. 10-7. BB&T did not assert a claim against Rad, Nourafchan, or R&S for failure to pay 28

1 on the note or guaranty. Id. St. Rose Lenders filed a counterclaim seeking priority over the 2 Colonial Bank deed of trust. ECF No. 10-2 at 4.

3 The state court held a non-jury trial in the consolidated cases in early 2010 regarding the 4 priority of the competing liens. Id. at 2. BB&T attempted to show it owned the note and deed of 5 trust related to the construction loan by producing the Purchase and Assumption Agreement
6 between BB&T and the FDIC. Id. at 5. During the trial, the court indicated that the Agreement
7 would not suffice to prove ownership of the note and deed of trust, so it directed BB&T to return
8 the next day with further evidence. Id. BB&T returned with two new documents: a November
9 2009 assignment and an executed but unrecorded assignment. Id. at 6. The November 2009
10 assignment states that the FDIC, as Colonial Bank's receiver, assigned to BB&T all of its rights
11 and interests in any loans and deeds of trust owned by Colonial Bank as of August 14, 2009 in the 12 State of Nevada, along with the related notes and loan documents. ECF No. 1 at 86-87. The court 13 excluded both of these exhibits because they were not previously disclosed. ECF No. 10-2 at 6.
14 BB&T then attempted to substitute in the FDIC or Colonial Bank if the state court were inclined 15 to find BB&T had not met its burden of establishing it owned the note and deed of trust, but the 16 court denied that motion. Id.

17 The state trial court entered its findings of fact and conclusions of law on June 23, 2010.
18 Id. It held that BB&T had not met its evidentiary burden of proving it received an assignment of 19 Colonial Bank's interest in the construction loan deed of trust. Id. at 5. Specifically, the court 20 found that the Purchase and Assumption Agreement "did not clearly transfer the loan, note and 21 deed of trust at issue." Id. The court found the Agreement "was not sufficient evidence, on its 22 face, to establish that BB&T was assigned the 2007 Colonial Bank Deed of Trust" because (1) the 23 agreement referred to attached schedules but no such schedules existed and (2) it excluded certain 24 assets from the sale but it was unclear whether the fraud claims against Rad and Nourafchan² fell
25 into this category. Id. at 8, 23-24. The court found the Agreement was "internally inconsistent

26
27 ² BB&T alleged that Rad and Nourafchan misled the escrow agent into believing they would re-28 convey the St. Rose Lender's deed of trust so that it would be subordinate to the Colonial Bank deed of trust for the construction loan. ECF No. 16-5 at 25-28.

1 and incomplete, and prevents the Court from making a finding as to whether an assignment of the 2 loan at issue has occurred.” Id. at 24. As a result, the court concluded that BB&T had not shown 3 it owned the claims it was pursuing. Id. at 25. The court then held the St. Rose Lenders’ deed of 4 trust was in first priority position. Id. at 28.

5 Meanwhile, in July 2010, BB&T filed another lawsuit in state court against Rad and 6 Nourafchan based on their personal guaranty of the construction loan. ECF No. 10-8. BB&T
7 asserted that the FDIC had transferred the guaranty to BB&T through the 2009 Purchase and 8 Assumption Agreement. Id. at 4. The state court dismissed that action without prejudice. ECF
9 No. 10-10. The court ruled that the issue of whether BB&T received a valid assignment had 10 already been litigated in the prior lawsuit and BB&T lost at the trial level, so BB&T would have 11 to prevail on appeal in the first action to bring the second action. ECF No. 16-5 at 32-35.

12 In April 2011, R&S filed for bankruptcy. ECF No. 10-11 at 3. Through the bankruptcy
13 proceedings, R&S sold the property to a third party for $13,500,000. (In re R&S St. Rose, LLC, 14 No. 11-14974-MKN, ECF No. 302). Following the sale, most of the proceeds were distributed to 15 St. Rose Lenders. Id.

16 In July 2011, BB&T recorded an Assignment and Assumption of Deed of Trust, Loan
17 Documents, and Associated Documents and Rights. ECF No. 16-5 at 37-46. This assignment
18 states that the FDIC, as receiver for Colonial Bank, assigned to BB&T the promissory note for the 19 construction loan, the deed of trust, the construction loan agreement, and all documents connected 20 with that agreement, including guaranties. Id. at 38-39. The assignment also transfers to BB&T:

21 [a]ll other rights of [FDIC], . . . connected or associated with, arising from, or 22 otherwise related to the Note, Deed of Trust, Loan Documents, Loan, Security 23 Instruments, Title Policy, Property, and/or the Instruments and Rights, including, without limitation, all legal or equitable rights, obligations, claims, or causes of action directly or indirectly related to any of the foregoing

24 Id. The assignment was signed in June 2011 but states that it “shall be deemed effective as of 25 August 14, 2009.” Id. at 40, 42.

26 In November 2014, BB&T filed this lawsuit against Rad and Nourafchan, alleging it is 27 Colonial Bank’s successor-in-interest based on (1) the Purchase and Assumption Agreement, (2) 28 the November 2009 assignment, (3) the July 2011 assignment, and (4) an allonge to the

1 promissory note. Id. at 4. BB&T brings claims for breach of contract and breach of the covenant
2 of good faith and fair dealing based on the guaranty.

3 On February 2, 2015, Rad and Nourafchan moved to dismiss on the grounds of issue
4 preclusion, claim preclusion, and the statute of limitations. ECF No. 35. I held that issue
5 preclusion did not bar BB&T's action because (1) the transfer of the guaranty and the validity of 6 the 2011 assignment were not issues in the first state court case and (2) the second state court case
7 was dismissed without prejudice. Id. I also held that claim preclusion did not bar BB&T's action
8 because Rad and Nourafchan expressly agreed to allow multiple lawsuits until the debt was paid
9 in full. Id. And I held that Nevada's six-year limitation period applied and did not bar BB&T's
10 action because the complaint alleged that Colonial Bank made demand on Rad and Nourafchan 11 on April 3, 2009 and filed suit on November 21, 2014. Id.

12 BB&T now moves for summary judgment on its breach of contract claim and seeks 13 $44,517,158.59 in damages. Rad and Nourafchan oppose the motion on the grounds of the law of 14 the case and statute of limitations. They also contend BB&T failed to mitigate its damages and 15 that its damages should be offset for several reasons.

16 II. ANALYSIS

17 Summary judgment is appropriate if the pleadings, discovery responses, and affidavits 18 demonstrate "there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to 19 judgment as a matter of law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a), (c). A fact is material if it "might affect the 20 outcome of the suit under the governing law." Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248
21 (1986). An issue is genuine if "the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict 22 for the nonmoving party." Id.

23 The party seeking summary judgment bears the initial burden of informing the court of the 24 basis for its motion and identifying those portions of the record that demonstrate the absence of a 25 genuine issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). The burden
26 then shifts to the nonmoving party to set forth specific facts demonstrating there is a genuine 27 issue of material fact for trial. Fairbank v. Wunderman Cato Johnson, 212 F.3d 528, 531 (9th Cir.
28

2000). I view the evidence and reasonable inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party. James River Ins. Co. v. Hebert Schenk, P.C., 523 F.3d 915, 920 (9th Cir. 2008).

A. Breach of Contract

BB&T argues that it is entitled to summary judgment in the amount of $44,517,158.59 for its breach of contract claim. Although Rad and Nourafchan do not oppose this portion of BB&T's motion, I must determine whether BB&T has satisfied its initial burden under Rule 56. Henry v. Gill Indus., Inc., 983 F.2d 943, 950 (9th Cir. 1993). In Nevada, a plaintiff must satisfy three elements to succeed on a breach of contract claim: (1) the existence of a valid contract; (2) a breach by the defendant; and (3) damage as a result of the breach. Saini v. Int'l Game Tech., 434 F. Supp. 2d 913, 920 (D. Nev. 2006) (citing Richardson v. Jones, 1 Nev. 405, 405 (Nev. 1865)).

BB&T produced evidence to support each element. The stipulation between the parties supports BB&T's allegation that Rad and Nourafchan executed a valid contract with Colonial Bank, that they breached the contract, and have not repaid any amounts due in connection with it. See ECF No. 33 at 2–3. BB&T also provided evidence supporting its allegation that the FDIC validly assigned the contracts to BB&T. See ECF No. 38 at Exs. 9–10. And it provided evidence to support its calculation of $44,517,158.59 in damages as of October 16, 2015. See ECF No. 38 at Ex. 1, 6. BB&T has therefore met its initial burden of demonstrating the absence of a genuine issue of material fact for trial.

B. Law of the Case

In opposition, Rad and Nourafchan argue that summary judgment is inappropriate “because of the law of the case arising from the Guarantor Action previously before the State Court prevents BB&T from pursuing” claims here. ECF No. 44 at 17. BB&T responds that the law of the case doctrine is inapplicable to the state court action. BB&T is correct.

“Under the law of the case doctrine, a court is ordinarily precluded from reexamining an issue previously decided by the same court, or a higher court, in the same case.” Hydrick v. Hunter, 500 F.3d 978, 986 (9th Cir. 2007) (citation omitted), cert. granted, judgment vacated on other grounds, 556 U.S. 1256 (2009). For the law of the case doctrine to apply, “the issue in

1 question must have been ‘decided explicitly or by necessary implication in [the] previous
2 disposition.’” United States v. Lummi Indian Tribe, 235 F.3d 443, 452 (9th Cir. 2000) (quoting
3 Liberty Mut. Ins. v. EEOC, 691 F.2d 438, 441 (9th Cir. 1982)); United States v. Cote, 51 F.3d
4 178, 181 (9th Cir. 1995) (“[T]he law of the case acts as a bar only when the issue in question was 5 actually considered and decided by the first court.”). Rad and Nourafchan argue that state-court
6 decisions bar summary judgment here. They do not. See Cote, 51 F.3d at 181. I have already 7 held that the state court actions do not bar BB&T’s complaint under the doctrines of issue or 8 claim preclusion. See ECF No. 35. The law of the case does not prevent me from entering 9 summary judgment.

10 C. Statute of Limitations

11 Rad and Nourafchan next argue that summary judgment is inappropriate because “genuine 12 issue[s] of material fact exist as to whether BB&T’s Complaint . . . is time barred.” ECF No. 44 at 13 22. BB&T responds that a statute-of-limitations defense is a question of law and the undisputed 14 facts show that its action is timely. I agree with BB&T.

15 “The application of a statute of limitations . . . is a question of law for the court, not for 16 the jury.” Hilao v. Estate of Marcos, 103 F.3d 767, 779 (9th Cir. 1996); see also Day v. Zobel, 17 922 P.2d 536, 539 (Nev. 1996). I previously applied Nevada’s six-year statute of limitations to 18 BB&T’s claims. Nev. Rev. Stat. § 11.190(1)(b); ECF No. 35. I rejected Rad and Nourafchan’s
19 assertion that the limitations period began in September 2008 because they failed to present
20 evidence supporting this argument and BB&T pleaded that Rad and Nourafchan’s payment 21 became due in January 2009. ECF No. 35 at 10.

22 Rad and Nourafchan now provide a check dated September 29, 2008 to support their 23 assertion that the limitations period expired before BB&T filed suit. ECF No. 44 at Ex. 5.
24 However, the complete loan history provided by BB&T shows that the September 29, 2008 check
25 was not the last payment that Colonial Bank received. See ECF No. 49 at 8 (citing Ex. 1 at 93).
26 Payments were received in October 2008, November 2008, December 2008, and January 2009.
27
28

1 Id. BB&T's action is therefore timely.³ See Petersen v. Bruen, 792 P.2d 18, 20 (Nev. 1990)
2 ("The general rule concerning statutes of limitation is that a cause of action accrues when the 3 wrong occurs and a party sustains injuries for which relief could be sought."). The limitations
4 period began to run after January 2009, when Colonial Bank stopped receiving funds.

5 D. Failure to Mitigate

6 Rad and Nourafchan next argue that BB&T did not exercise reasonable care to mitigate its 7 damages because it did not pursue legal action against its title insurance company or a
8 malpractice claim against its prior legal counsel, which represented BB&T in the state court
9 actions. "As a general rule, a party cannot recover damages for loss that he could have avoided
10 by reasonable efforts." Sheehan & Sheehan v. Nelson Malley & Co., 117 P.3d 219, 226 (Nev.
11 2005). "[T]he burden is upon the party whose wrongful act caused the damages complained of 12 to prove . . . that the damages might have been lessened by reasonable diligence on the part of the 13 aggrieved party." Cobb v. Osman, 433 P.2d 259, 263 (Nev. 1967).

14 Rad and Nourafchan's argument is unpersuasive. In essence, they contend that BB&T 15 should have commenced two lawsuits against other parties before initiating one lawsuit against 16 Rad and Nourafchan, who have stipulated that they "did not pay any of the outstanding amounts 17 due." ECF No. 33 at 2. Although the Supreme Court of Nevada has not decided whether an 18 injured party must commence a separate lawsuit to mitigate damages, "[t]he general rule is that 19 'injured parties need not . . . institute and prosecute [law] suits' in order to mitigate damages."
20 Stone v. Satriana, 41 P.3d 705, 712 (Colo. 2002) (quoting Robinson v. Carney, 632 A.2d 106, 21 108 (D.C. 1993)). If presented with the issue, I believe the Supreme Court of Nevada would 22 adopt the general rule and find that an injured party is not required to pursue legal action to 23 mitigate damages. I therefore reject Rad and Nourafchan's argument that BB&T failed to 24 mitigate its damages.

25 ///

27 ³ Because BB&T's action is timely under Nevada's six-year statute of limitations, I decline to 28 address BB&T's argument in the alternative that a longer federal limitations period applies.

1 E. Offset

2 Finally, although Rad and Nourafchan do not contest BB&T's calculation of damages,
3 they argue that BB&T's damages should be offset for several reasons. See ECF No. 44 at 27–30.
4 They first assert that the consideration BB&T paid the FDIC for the Note is disputed and should 5 offset BB&T's recovery. In support, they rely on a quarterly report that Colonial Bank filed with 6 the Security and Exchange Commission and argue that BB&T paid the FDIC approximately $21
7 million for the Note. They contend that I should take judicial notice of the filing and conclude 8 that it creates a material dispute for trial. I disagree.

9 I may take judicial notice of certain filings with the government. Lee, 250 F.3d at 690.
10 But as I have previously stated, the doctrine of judicial notice does not permit me to take the facts
11 asserted in the filings as true. See ECF No. 35 at 1 n.1 (citing Lee, 250 F.3d at 690). Even if it
12 did, the consideration BB&T paid for the loan is irrelevant. Nevada law provides that a guarantor
13 is “liable on his own obligation, which is absolute and independent of the note itself.” Branch
14 Banking & Trust Co. v. Sossaman & Guadalupe Plaza, LLC, 47 F. Supp. 3d 1083, 1089 (D. Nev.
15 2014) (citing Randono v. Turk, 466 P.2d 218, 223 (Nev. 1970)). There is no dispute that the 16 FDIC assigned to BB&T “all rights” connected to the Note, including the guarantees.

17 Rad and Nourafchan also argue that summary judgment is inappropriate because BB&T
18 did not properly disclose its damages. But Rad and Nourafchan have not moved to strike 19 BB&T's damages, shown that BB&T's computation of damages is improper under Rule 26, or 20 cited to the record that contains the allegedly improper disclosures. I therefore decline to offset 21 damages on this basis.

22 Finally, Rad and Nourafchan assert that payments the FDIC may have made to BB&T
23 under a Loss Share Agreement should offset BB&T's damages because the Loss Share
24 Agreement permits BB&T to obtain a double recovery. Courts in this District have repeatedly 25 rejected this argument. See Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Sossaman & Guadalupe Plaza, LLC,
26 47 F. Supp. 3d 1083, 1098 (D. Nev. 2014); Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Frank, No. 2:11-cv-
27 1366-JCM-CWH, 2013 WL 5428112, at *7 (D. Nev. Sept. 26, 2013); Branch Banking & Trust
28

1 Co. v. D.M.S.I., LLC, No. 2:11-cv-01778-MMD-VCF, 2013 WL 3200087, at *8 (D. Nev. June
2 21, 2013). I reject it as well.

3 III. CONCLUSION

4 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that BB&T's motion for summary judgment (ECF No.
5 38) is GRANTED with regard to BB&T's breach of contract claim in the amount of 6 $44,517,158.59 as of October 1, 2015. BB&T shall submit a proposed form of judgment that 7 includes an updated interest calculation.
